

ENFORSYS ACQUIRES DESK SERGEANT AND MUNIPOL

Acquisition Positions Company As Dominant Law Enforcement Technology Provider In New Jersey

WHIPPANY , NJ , August 11, 2005 - Enforsys Systems Inc. , a leading provider of software that enables information sharing and mobile reporting for law enforcement agencies, today announced that it has acquired Desk Sergeant and Munipol, two respected computer aided dispatch (CAD) and records management software (RMS) companies in southern New Jersey. Terms were not disclosed.

The acquisitions, which will add 55 new customers to Enforsys' already significant roster of existing clients, will give the company a significant presence in southern New Jersey, and position it as the leader in providing premier technology and data solutions to law enforcement agencies throughout the state. Enforsys currently serves over 130 law enforcement agencies throughout New Jersey.

"These acquisitions will support our growth objectives, and help us to meet growing demand for advanced information technology solutions from law enforcement agencies," commented George Lieberman , CEO of Enforsys. "Both Desk Sergeant and Munipol have been dedicated to serving the technology needs of New Jersey law enforcement agencies for over two decades, and we're confident that this combination will result in an unprecedented level of product quality and customer service."

Real Time Information

According to Enforsys, Desk Sergeant and Munipol customers will gain access to the company's various products and services including PoliSys, a comprehensive integrated CAD, RMS and Mobile Data Terminal solution for law enforcement agencies designed by police officers.

"Our technology captures and shares critical information in real time with officer to help prepare them before they arrive at the scene of a crime or when responding to a call," said Chief William Plate, Jr. Ret., vice president at Enforsys. "The software also streamlines the process of inputting data so officers can spend more time out on the street responding to various incidents as opposed to spending hours filling out reports."

As part of the acquisitions, Enforsys will combine the Desk Sergeant and Munipol offices, currently located in Brigantine and Marlton respectively, into one main southern New Jersey office headquartered in Egg Harbor Township, Atlantic County. No changes in staffing levels are anticipated as a result of the deal, and both Brigantine Police Captain Jeff Doran, Ret., Desk Sergeant's CEO, and Jack Brownstein, Pres. and Dick Cooper, Vice Pres. of Munipol will serve as regional consultants and sales managers.
